Athletics . . . 104-123

We do not ask ourselves why we are here.

School is a pattern that was given us before we could decide whether or not

we wanted it.

We accepted or rejected it without thinking.

Never having evaluated it,

we did not know what

we wanted from it—if anything—

or what it could give us.

We grew around it,

formed a life around it,

and did not question.

Only when we begin something new will we

be able to see how this past helped us—

or did not help us.

We will begin to evaluate.

We will recall the hazy and miscellaneous

images of what we did here,

fit them into a pattern,

and criticize it.

But we will have changed.

Our values, our ideas will have changed.

And we may regard as childish whatever seems important now.

But this pattern has had a real existence—

an existence that cannot be minimized

or passed off.

It has formed us.

This is our world

And we have here

friends
enemies
tensions
irritations
and pleasures.

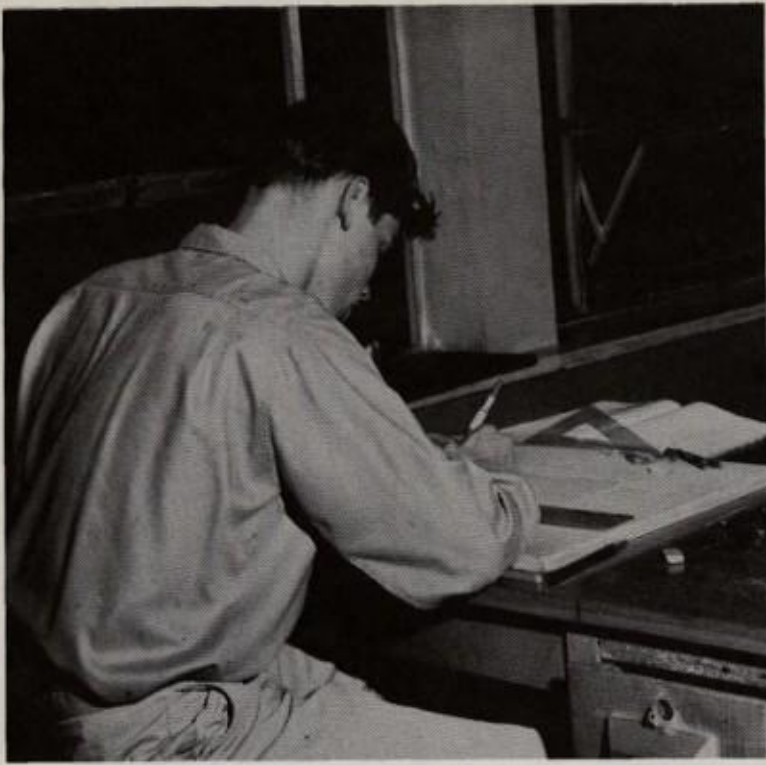

Here we are interested
 indifferent
 gratified
 defiant
 protected.

We are protected here —
 Here in the smaller,
 less-complete world.

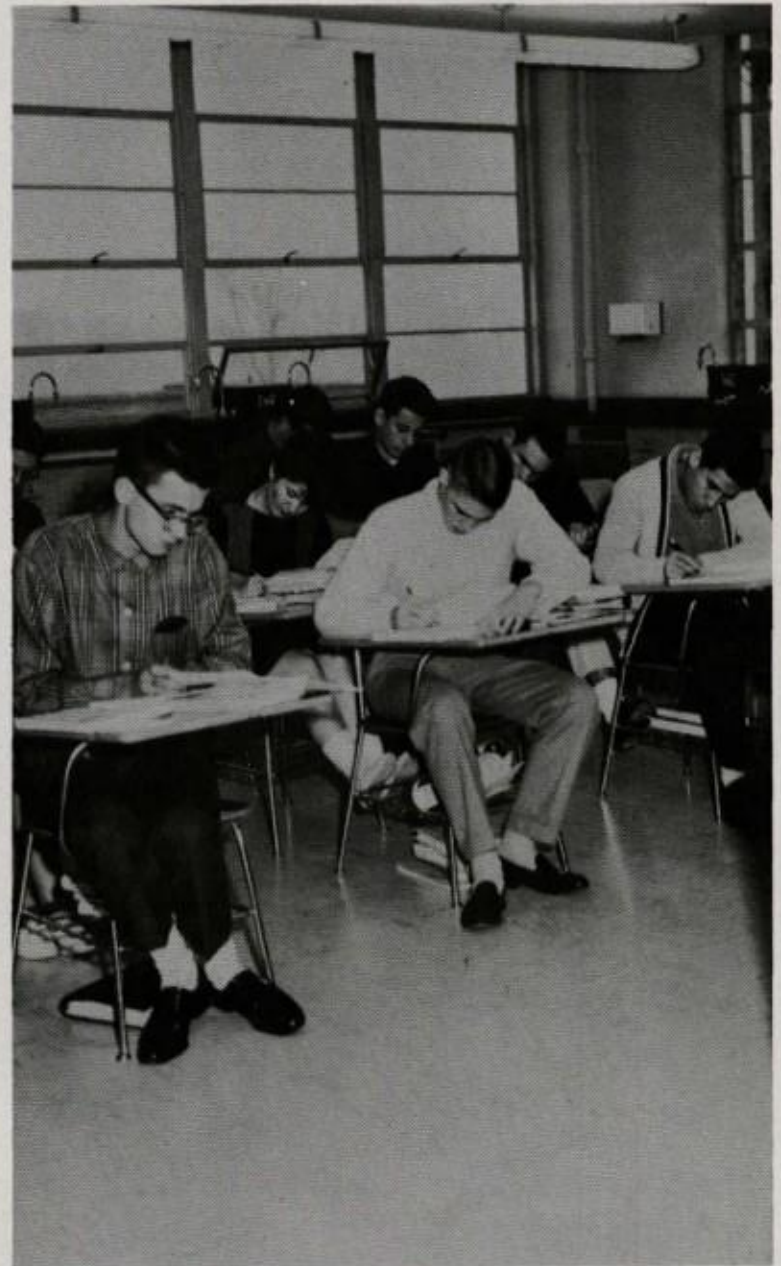

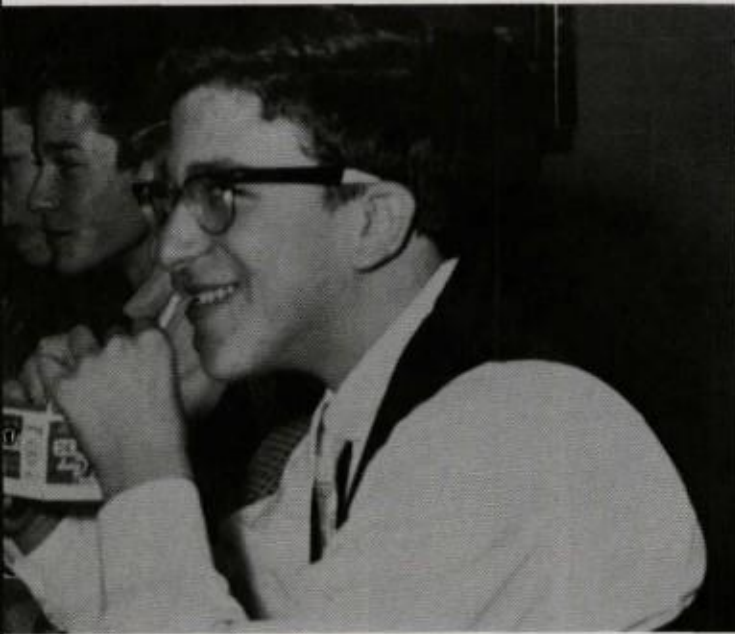

There are papers, homework, nerve-wracking recitations,
tests and quizzes, reports, research, facts,

facts —

facts—

concepts—

facts—

We may become tense —

irritable —

tired —

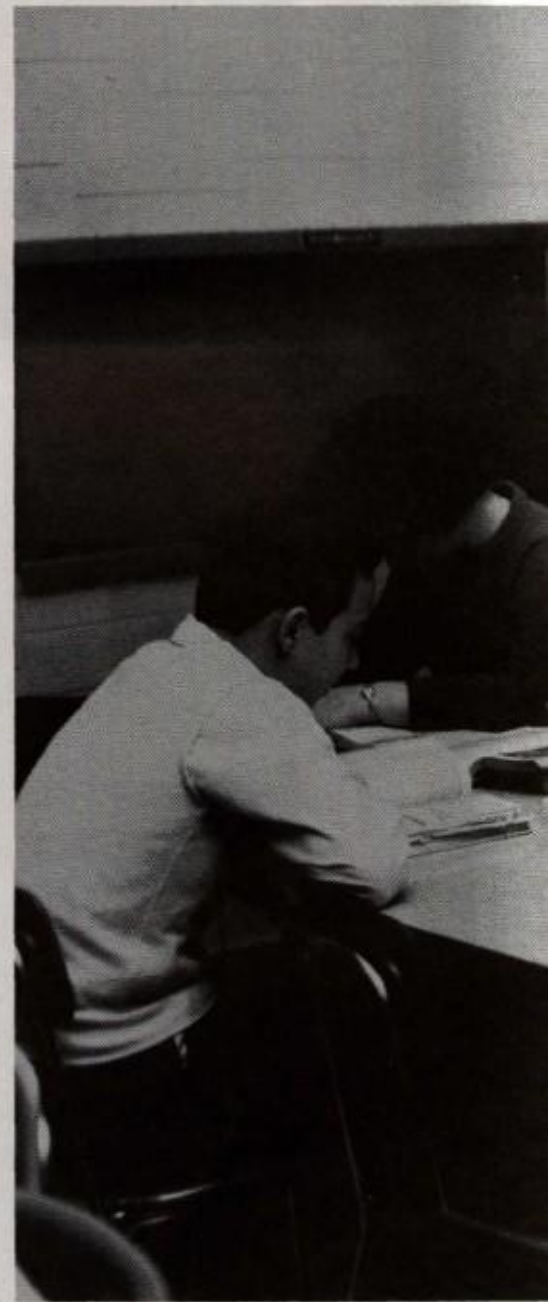

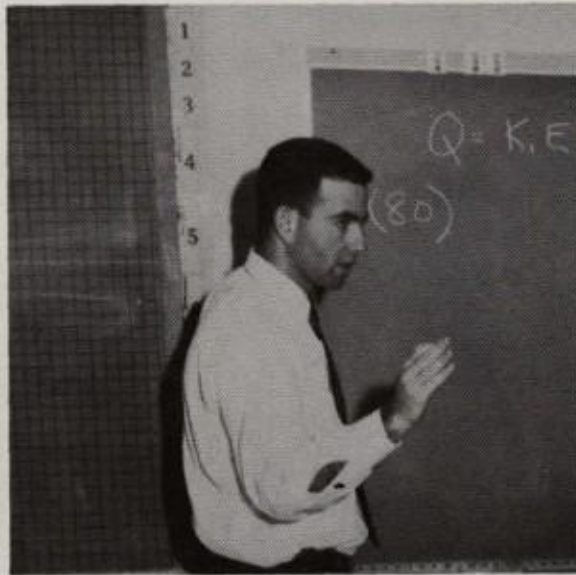

angry.

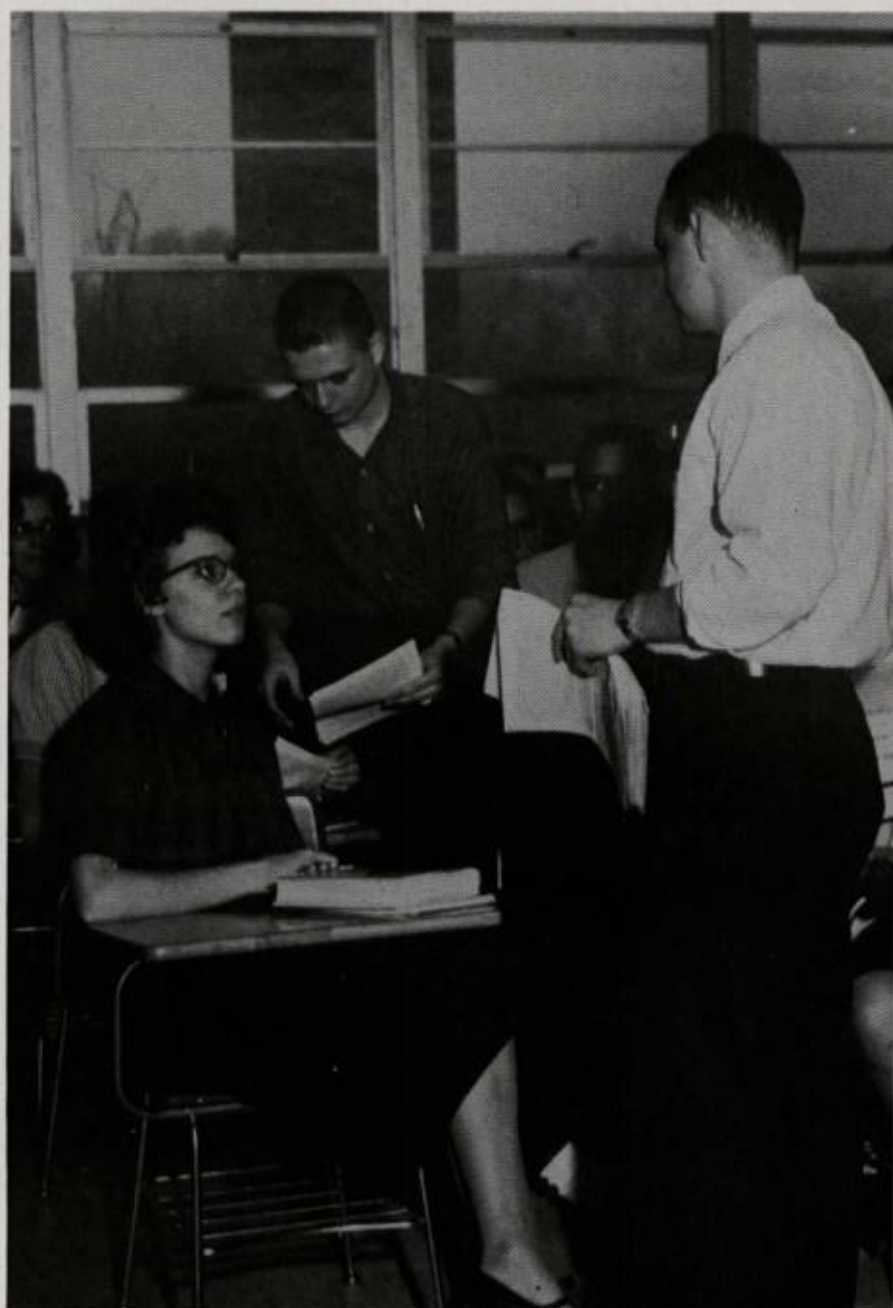

We may become overwhelmed by this pattern — swept into it.

But there are releases.

Here
we have a chance
not to be petty,
for what is demanded of us
is that
we lose ourselves
in something else —

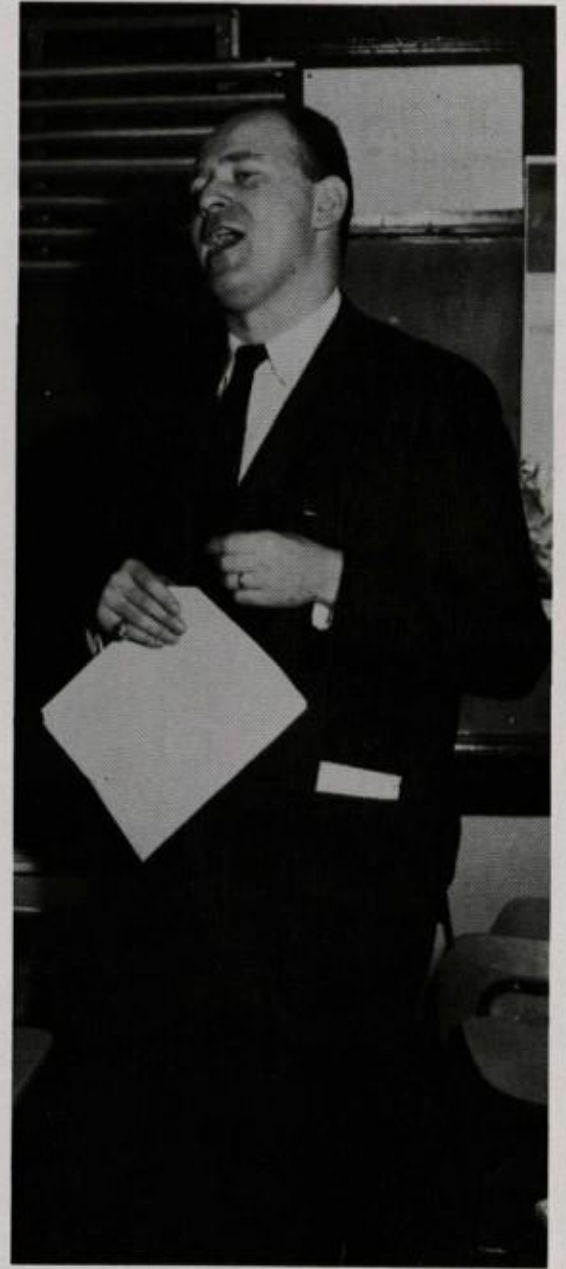

Our interest?
Our growth?
Our knowledge?

Is that compensation
for their work?

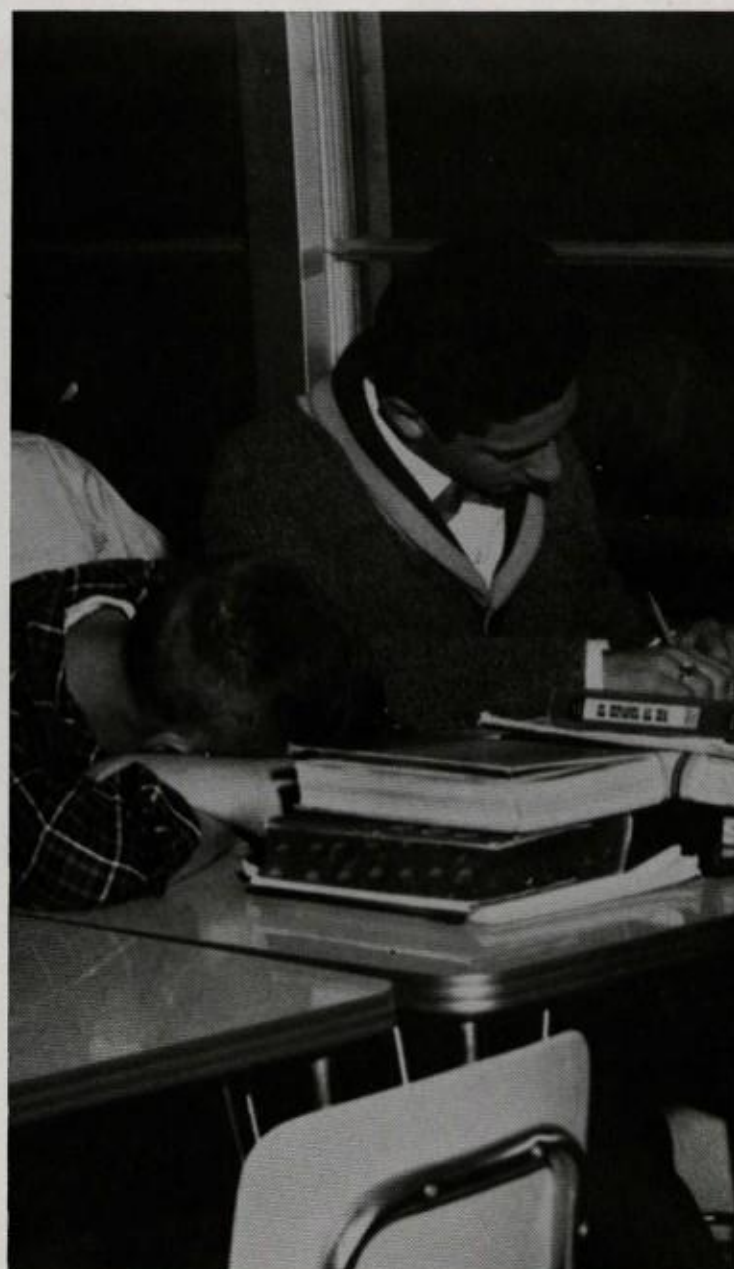

We'll remember Mayfield, yes.
But the memory will blur.
What we liked or what we disliked,
what we thought, how we felt —
these will all be displaced
by newer events,
newer ideas.

For the past year, the task of putting words and pictures together to form the 1962 Mayfielder has been performed by the people pictured here—the Mayfielder Editorial Staff.

But this book is only a catalogue of images. They are, of necessity, formal and conventional. It is you who must make them personal and meaningful.
